Woman's Gratitude Spells Joys for Others

Last year the Colonist 500 Christmas Fund helped 69-year-old pensioner Mrs. Mary Smith, 1164 Esqui-malt Road. This year she is helping the fund and has dressed and renovated all these dolls which she has donated to the 500 Christmas Fund toy auction to be held at Maynard's auction rooms Dec. 20 at 7.30 p.m. Hundreds more toys are needed, and auctioneer Art Roberts Jr. last night appealed to all Victorians to rummage through old toy boxes to see what they can donate to the toy auction which will swell the fund to bring Christmas cheer to the 500 most needy family groups in this area. -(Colonist photo.)

Turkey Shoot Aids Fund * * *

Experienced hunters and mateur "shotgun artists" alike are expected to take home an estimated four tons of Christmas turkeys and hams from the two-day Victoria Gun Club turkey shoot Dec. 20 and 21.

"If you don't own your o shotgun come anyway," Mr. Noble said, "there will be lots of guns available."

Shooting will commence at 9 a.m., and will continue until dusk, both Saturday and Sun-

COMPROMISE action by the ministerial council of the six-nation European Common Market to avoid a split with the eleven-nation Organia split with the eleven-nation Organization for European Economic Coperation has been reported from Brussels, without formal confirmation yet. The formula said to have been chosen would apply "to all other members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade," which is still wider coverage. When the official decision has been made known its range and effect will be better understood. Obviously the six nations of range and effect will be better under-stood. Whether this is to apply to the OEEC, including those nations outside of the Common Market, or still more broadly to "all nations" which have signed the GATT concord has yet to be confirmed. Great Britain was pressing for the reconcillation between Common Market and Economic Co-operation groups, after French objection imperilled earlier

Coming into shape through such decisions, whether tentative or final, is a newer and more integrated trading region in Western Europe. Its importance to Canada and to all Commonwealth lands will be greater, and not less, than before. There will be natural interest in Canada to see how this decision, and no doubt others pending, will affect the course of overseas exports from this land. It is a foregone conclusion that such that are exphanges must be in the that such exchanges must be in the form of two-way trading if they are to endure and prosper. Sir Winston Churchill, and escape the chill rigors of the English winter by going abroad. A news item from London says that he will fly later this month to Mexico, where the warm southern climate will suit his present delicate state of health. His many admirers will wish him a restorative holiday.

An interesting aspect of his vacation in Mexico is the report that he will continue work there on his memoirs. It is not an unusual custom for retired generals and statesmen of note to reminisce in print after leaving the active scenes of their fame. Recalling the tragic circumstance of his failing health and enforced retirement in the midst of sharp international controversy, however, the memoirs of Sir Anthony should be of special interest. There will be much speculation in advance for instance about what he has to say of the Suez incident and its aftermath.

Sir Anthony Eden's whole career

has been a fascinating one, and it was ironic in the extreme that such an apostle of international goodwill should becloud his fine record by the Suez intervention. Much of that story has not yet been told, however. His critics of that time have had cause to revise some of their opinions in the light of subsequent Middle East happenings. The conclusion has been widely drawn, for example, that his greatest mistake was not the intervention but the premature withdrawal after action had been initidrawal after action had been initi-ated. Undoubtedly the latter was drawal dr modest and magnanimous in his life-time, but one trusts he feels it due to himself to present a frank and uninhibited account of the whole Suez venture, including what led up to it and the reasons for its abandon-ment. His service to his country and to the West in general have been too honorable for him to be unfairly judged for lack of documentary evidence.

Inadequate Excuses

SINCE the regrettable performance at Victoria College last week some of the students have tried to justify the offensive nature of conduct during addresses by the premier and the attorney-general of British Columbia. They have falled, and the excuses recently put forward betray immaturity.

Some allowance for the callow-ness of youth perhaps could be made if the derisive demonstrations had if the derisive demonstrations had been spontaneous; but they were not. The insults to the premier were calculated and premeditated. The offensive banners, the effigy which was hanged during the meeting in puerile and unimaginative imitation of a shopworn practice south of the line, were not spur-of-the-moment Ideas. They required a dvance preparation. It is perfectly obvious, therefore, that the display was not prompted by the premier's address. Before they heard anything the premier had to say the students must have planned the humiliation.

The premier was the students' guest. He did not thrust his presence upon them to deliver a political speech. The students invited Mr. Bennett to meet them and he accepted, at what must have been some inconvenience to a very busy man. Thereupon the students, or a group of them, must have set about preparations for a crudely offensive welcome of a type which might be expected from uneducated hoodlums. In time these young people may expected from uneducated hoodlums. In time these young people may grow up to understand that in civilized and decent society one does not invite people into one's home or club or anywhere else and then proceed to affront them. Much less does one invite guests with the deliberate intention of so doing. Many of those who took part in a degrading display of bad manners have the franchise, but obviously lack the dignity and sense of responsibility which should go with it. In assuming that they were sufficiently mature to have the right to vote Premier Bennett may have been in error.

Compromise May Emerge

MENTION the word Berlin at the United Nations these days and the reaction immediately becomes evasive.

Even the Soviet-bloc delegates have not gone on record as pushing the issue of the former German—capital in the world assembly, although Premier Khrushchev has indicated that he might favor the UN as a possible mediating factor in any "internationalization" of

Two factors appear to be keeping Berlin out of the UN even as a talking point. One is that for the next few months at least the big powers directly involved have a time limit to consider. The other is that Germany-East or West.

When the Soviet premier served notice on the three Western allies that Russia was abrogating its occupation agree-ments regarding Germany he specified a six-month period for the United States. Britain and France to do likewise. After that period, he warned, the East German Communist regime would be given con-trol of all land, water and air communi-cation lines leading from Berlin—which is deep in the East zone of Germany-to

But compromises reached over periods of time have been the historical and basic means of attempts by the UN to settle disputes. And if the big powers can get together before next June on some form of Berlin solution the other members would not be likely meanwhile to jeopardize these outside negotiations by making Berlin an inflammatory aegis of "a group called the Native Sons of Canada," to quote from Printing House Square, The phraseology suggests that the Times is none too sure who these natives are, whether redskins or the palefaces who dispossessed them.*

The Times item refers to a state-ment in Ottawa by Miss Ellen Fairclough, the eminent Minister of Immigration and Citizenship, who termed "slightly ridiculous" any suggestion that "God Save the Queen" is not this country's national anthem But why "slightly?" If "The Queen" has been decreed as the national anthem, something one doubts as a matter of official written record. then an opposite supposition might be dismissed without the qualifying adjective. What is not ridiculous, how ever, begging the lady's pardon, is the sentiment of native sons who want to elevate the status of "O Can-

I am not a native son but I sym pathize with their aspirations. So do a great many other people, indeed, for unless my ears betray me "O Canada" is played more often than "The Queen." But perhaps usage and the growth of national sentiment escapes Miss Fairclough.

The trouble with "God Save the Queen" is that it is played far too frequently, and too casually, in circumstances that reduce its quality and significance. So for that matter is "O Canada," mere ritualistic repetition of which brings response without thought. It is quite obvious from their stilludes that the last thing many singers are doing is standing on guard. Often enough they are

My own solution to the problem, to reserve "God Save the Queen" dane occasions. Actually the Queen doesn't have to be saved so often, you know. She is in no danger, being as when things were different, and It was to invoke protection for one of her ancestors that this anthem that later on another of her ancestors changed the words and applied the song in defence against a descen-dant of the first ancestor merely adds to the paradox.

Miss Fairclough is said to have been commenting on a recent Native Sons banquet in Toronto where the banqueteers didn't open proceedings with "The Queen." The Native Sons are by no means alone in opening with "O Canada." Miss Fairclough may not know what goes on, and it may seem to be turning precedence upside down, but at most functions this is the rule, King James II's an-them being reserved until the close Perhaps this is the prudent course for what is coming, or supposedly so, and "sends" the monarch to ac-

A pity perhaps the Queen herself couldn't be consulted on the subject. It wouldn't be surprising if she cast her ballot in favor of "O Canada." if only for a change, for her apresto

How do the Americans feel about this. I asked a USAF colonel here. "After the first week," he said, "we stopped thinking of the Canadians as being any different from us. The air marshal is the deputy commander, and when he says 'jump,' we jump."

Air Marshal Slemon, one feels, is the prime element on the Canadian side responsible for this outstanding example of international and interservice harmony, comraderie and teamwork, He and Gen. Partridge are more than commander and deputy; they are almost after egos, with frankly there is "nothing to be desired" in his relationship with Parfridge.

As for Partridge: his view is that the Canada-U.S. defence partnership is "one of the biggest things we the., the U.S.) did.

Being one of those who have in the past been a strong advocate of the movement to grant university status to Victoria College, now I am not so sure that it would be such a good idea, after the reception the premier of British Columbia received on Nov. 27, when he gave his valuable time to speak to the student body of that institution (at their invitation).

Marry Victoria? Ha!

Some years ago, parking melecs were installed in the downtown area, ostensibly to pay for eventual off-street parking which has never materialized. Now I note that the city fathers intend to doubte the cost of parking to pay for a parking building and mail.

This may be a fine proposition for the businessmen, but I for one will do as much of my shopping as possible in the suburbs and limit my spending downtown to those firms who have recognized their responsibility and have supplied free parking lots.

If amalgamation with Victoria is going to mean subsidizing the downtown husinessmen by increasing the parking cost or by increasing the home-owner's taxes, then, paraphrasing "My Fair Lady," I say.
